General Rules

- English is the only official and working language allowed to be used throughout the conference, during both moderated and unmoderated caucuses.
- The rules listed in this document apply to all of the committees and general assemblies, except for the United Nations Security Council (UNSC), which holds the right to adopt its own rules at the discretion of its Chairs and the Secretariats. However, it is still strongly recommended that the rules in this document be used as a basis for proceedings.
- The P5s have the right to veto. This is limited to vetoing one clause per resolution.
- All credentials of delegations are collected and accepted upon registration. Actions relating to the modification of rights, privileges, or credentials of any member may not be initiated without the written consent of the Secretary General. Any representative to whose admission a member objects will provisionally be seated with the same rights as the other representatives, pending a decision from the secretary general.
- Delegations may include only one alternate representative. Each delegation will be represented by only one voting delegate.
- The Secretary General or a designated member of the secretariat may make either written or oral statements to the committee at any time.
- If a delegate is not present during the roll call procedures, they are required to send a note to the Chair(s)/ Secretary-Generals to inform them of their presence upon arrival.
- During the conference, rules regarding the usage of electronic devices are at the discretion of the chair. Only electronic devices in use in relation to the MUN session are permitted for use except during designated breaks.¹
- The presence of a majority of the members will be required for voting on any substantive motion. A quorum will be assumed to be present unless specifically challenged and shown to be absent. A roll call is not required to determine the presence of a quorum.
- Representatives of accredited observers have the same rights as those of full members, except that they may not sign nor vote on substantive matters such as the drafting of resolutions or amendments.
- A representative who is not a member of the United Nations nor an accredited observer may address a committee only with the prior approval of the Chair.
- Resolutions during the General Assembly may only be allowed to proceed and be discussed via the official website.

The Debate

- Remember that debate is a very formal means of discussion; you must be polite and formal at all times during a debating session.
- In regards to debate, the statements of the Chair are final. The right to speak during a moderated caucus is particularly reserved for only the chair, or a member of the house who has the floor as decided by the Chair.

¹ It is requested that students bring a laptop or tablet for the conference, rather than using their phones for its duration.

- The Chair may, if circumstances require, extend or reduce debate or speaking times, and limit the number of points of information (including follow-ups). Delegates must always use the correct form of address by yielding the floor to the chair after a discussion.
- There will be no suspension of the rules or changes in the order of debate unless indicated by the Chair.
- Always use the correct form of address by speaking to the Chair at all times and never directly to another delegate.
- All speakers at the podium must stand when speaking and address the Chair first.
- Personal pronouns may not be used. Always refer to other delegates by the country they represent. Formal diction is preferred.

Points

- Points may only be entertained by the Chairs or the Secretary-Generals when a pause in debate is present.
 - Examples of a pause may include an exception made by the Chairs or the Secretary-Generals from their own judgement, or when the floor has been yielded to the Chairs or Secretary-Generals.
- The proposed point will only be recognised and verbally addressed when the Chairs or Secretary-Generals have granted permission to proceed.
- The process of stating a point may go as such: The delegate raises their placards and states, for instance, “Point of Order.” The Chairs or Secretary-Generals will then answer, “Please rise and state your point.” The delegate will then declare their point.

Point of Personal Privilege

- Strictly addressing the general comfort and well-being of the delegates (Audibility, Internet issues, temperature, etc.)
- Irrelevant to the debate in discussion and should not be raised to address points of debate.
- For example: “Point of Personal Privilege, may the chair request the delegate to speak more audibly?”

Point of Order

- Strictly relates to procedural matters. If any delegates believe the Chairs or Secretary-Generals have made a mistake, they may raise this point.
- Delegates must refer to an action which has just been acted upon when raising this point. If it is deemed irrelevant, it will be announced as out of order.
- The abuse of this point will result in the Advisors or Chairs speaking to the delegate personally.
- For example: “Point of Order, the delegate believes the speaker's time has exceeded the maximum amount provided.”

Point of Information

- Point of Information to the speaker/ Point of Inquiry

- This must be formatted in the structure of a question to be recognised by its recipient.
- The delegate is permitted to have 1 initial point of Inquiry; the following must be addressed as a follow-up and must be accepted by the Secretary-Generals or Chairs first.
- There will be no dialogue allowed, nor will interruptions be accepted.
- Point of Information to the Chair
 - Strictly to be asked towards the Chairs.
 - Any inquiries not falling under the category of Point of Personal Privilege, Point of Order, or Point of Parliamentary Enquiry will be categorised as a Point of Information to the Chairs.

Point of Parliamentary Enquiry

- This is a Point of Information for the Chairs regarding the Rules of Procedure.
- This is recognised as a separate point from the Point of Order, but may be followed up with such if necessary.
- These are best raised during a break in the debate.

Point of Clarification

- Delegates may raise this point when clarification is needed.
- Such clarification may include fact-checking and detailing policy statements.
- Delegates may only question and answer once the Secretary-Generals or Chairs have recognised the point.
- This will not be utilised to interrupt debates.

Motions

- Motions should be raised to the Secretary-Generals, Chairs, or other presiding officers.
- Motions will be restated by the Secretary-Generals and Chairs once raised to avoid confusion.
- Unmentioned motions may be entertained under the discretion of the Secretary-Generals or Chairs.
- All motions necessarily require at least one second to be entertained.

Motion to Move Directly Into Voting Procedures

- This motion shall request the closure of the floor and an immediate vote to be cast upon a resolution or amendment.
- This motion shall be entertained at the Secretary-Generals' or Chair's discretion; it may be deemed inappropriate if sufficient discussion is yet to be had.
- Any objections received against this motion may lead to further discussion and/or a vote.

Motion to Reconsider a Resolution

- This motion shall request the floor to reopen for debate over a resolution which has already been discussed.

- The resolution mentioned by such a motion shall only be addressed once the existing agenda has been cleared.
- This motion shall require a $\frac{2}{3}$ (two-thirds) supermajority to pass.

Motion to Withdraw a Resolution

- This motion shall request a resolution to be removed from the floor, and all further discussion and debate.
- This motion shall be entertained at the Secretary-Generals' or Chair's discretion.
- May only be entertained once the main and co-submitters have agreed upon its withdrawal.
- The resolution shall not be considered again once withdrawn from the floor.

Motion to Extend Debate Time

- This motion shall request for allocated time of debate be extended.
- This motion shall be entertained at the Secretary-Generals' or Chair's discretion; it may be deemed inappropriate due to time constraints.
- This motion shall require either a simple majority or a decision made by the Secretary Generals or Chairs.

Motion to Table a Resolution

- This motion shall request a resolution to be removed from debates without the decision of the submitters.
- It may be raised by any delegation before voting procedures begin.
- This motion shall require a $\frac{2}{3}$ (two-thirds) supermajority to pass.
- It may be reconsidered after implementation, either by separate motion or at the Secretary-Generals' or Chairs' discretion.

Motion to Revoke Voting Rights

- This motion shall request the revocation of the voting and motion-making right of a delegation.
- It may be appropriate when a delegation has falsely represented their nation or has intentionally been advocating for false and harmful positions.
- This motion shall require a for-speech, either by the initiating delegation or a separate delegation.
- The opportunity for an against speech shall be offered, either by the accused delegation or a separate delegation.
- This motion shall require a $\frac{2}{3}$ (two-thirds) supermajority to pass.
- The final decision shall be made by the Secretary Generals or Chairs only.

In the General Assembly (GA)

- It is the responsibility of the committee's chairs to send the passed resolution to both the Secretariats as well as the GA's Secretary-Generals.
 - This must be done at least 15 minutes before the commencement of the General Assembly. These will then be made available on the website by our Website Designer.
- These resolutions are still merely discussion documents and may be adapted or amended according to the will of the majority of delegates. The goal should be to achieve consensus so that the version finally adopted represents the opinion or will of the vast majority of delegates in each particular forum.

- Each country holds one voting right during the voting procedures. Hence, delegations representing the same nation (despite being in different committees) are required to sit together during GA and agree upon voting procedures. The Secretariats and the pages will prepare the conference room for the General Assembly in advance so that delegations from the same country are sitting together and in alphabetical order.

Resolutions

- All draft resolutions are required to have at least one co-submitter and three signatories for the resolution to be eligible for consideration and debate.
 - A draft resolution may only have a maximum of three co-submitters.
- A draft resolution must have at least four preambulatory clauses and five operative clauses for the resolution to be eligible for consideration and debate.
- All resolutions submitted to the General Assembly must be passed during its respective committee session through a simple majority vote.
 - If two or more resolutions are passed during a committee session, another vote must be in order to determine the resolution that will be submitted to the General Assembly; each committee may only submit one resolution to the General Assembly.
- Once a resolution has been passed during its committee session, no changes are permitted to be made to the document unless in the form of an amendment.

Amendments

- Amendments to a draft resolution can be made by any delegates who may wish to alter certain aspects or details of the resolution which they find disagreeable or unnecessary; delegates may also modify the wording of clauses which they may deem lacking in clarity.
 - Amendments to a draft resolution can be made by adding to, removing, or revising a portion of the document; this must only be submitted in suggestion form.
- For an amendment to pass, the Chair(s) and Main Submitter of the resolution must approve of the amendment; in the case that the amendment has been deemed unfriendly by the Main Submitter, a simple majority vote of the committee will allow the amendment to pass.
 - NGOs and Observer States are not permitted to vote on amendments.
 - Any amendments correcting grammatical, spelling, or punctuation errors will be automatically accepted by the Chair(s).
- If an amendment has been deemed unfriendly, the Chair(s) may permit the submitter of the amendment to give a for speech supporting the amendment, and the Main Submitter may likewise deliver a rebuttal in the form of an against speech, time permitting.
- Further amendments may be made to a portion of the document that has already been amended.

Voting Procedures

- Only member states are permitted to vote on amendments and resolutions.

- Delegates may vote For, Against, or Abstain on amendments and resolutions. Procedural matters require a For or Against only.
- No Points – excluding Points of Order referring to the voting procedure – will be entertained once voting begins.
- Voting will be conducted in silence; note-passing will also be prohibited during this period.
- The passing or failing of a resolution will be determined by the number of votes for and against.
- A resolution will pass once the number of votes in favour surpasses the number of against, reaching a simple majority of above 50%.
- Procedural matters such as motions to extend debate time that are not decided upon by the Secretary Generals or Chairs will require a supermajority vote of above 66.67% ($\frac{2}{3}$).
- If delegates have requested a re-vote or a roll-call vote due to uncertainty, the Secretary Generals and Chairs will use their own discretion on whether such measures are necessary.
- The Chairs must remain neutral at all times, refraining from making comments to sway votes.

Duties of Each Delegate

- Delegates must address each other in the third person. Throughout the debate, the chair may remind delegates that they must do so if many delegates are speaking in the first person.
- Delegates must raise their placard when proposing motions or asking points. After the Chairs/ Secretary-Generals recognise the delegate, the delegate must stand up and remain standing until their question has been answered completely.
- Delegates must always yield the floor back to the Chairs/ Secretary-Generals after they have finished speaking.
- Position papers are to be sent out to Student or Teacher Advisors by 7th November 2025.
 - Late position papers will be accepted, but delegations that have done so will not be eligible for awards.
 - Should a delegation fail to submit a position paper altogether, voting privileges may be withdrawn at the discretion of the Chairs and Secretaries-General, both in committees and the General Assembly.
- Delegates must also prepare opening statements limited to 90 seconds (1 minute and 30 seconds).
 - Chairs will call delegates to present their opening statements at the beginning of the committee sessions in alphabetical order.
 - Delegates will be cut off when going over the designated time limit.

Note-Passing

- Delegates may pass notes to other delegates within the same forum only.
- All messages must be written in English.
- During the Committee session and General Assembly, delegates must always clearly indicate who the note is from and whom it is for. If the note does not list the sending note passer or is inconsistent with the identification of the delegate as displayed by their placard's country, it will not be accepted by the note passer.
- Chairs/ Secretary-Generals may suspend notes if necessary.
 - Necessity is determined by the Chairs/ Secretary-Generals.

- Any inappropriate use of note-passing will be brought to the Chairs or Secretary-General, who has the option to suspend privileges for single delegations including any other delegations that aid the use of the inappropriate use of the notes. Any extreme cases of inappropriate language caught in note-passing will be intervened with by involved chaperones and the hosting secretariat.
- Chairs may send notes to officers in other forums.
 - Please refrain from doing so because these situations will be rare, and administrative members are busy. The Chair should prioritise communication with each other by means of the Chair group chat.

Funding

- Draft resolutions submitted to committee sessions and the General Assembly are not permitted to include details on specific numerical data on the amount of funding for any of its given initiatives.
 - Debating the specific numerical details of funding will be counterproductive to constructive discussions, preventing the delegates from debating the substantive and important aspects of the resolution.
- Any discussion on the plausibility of funding will be permitted as it is conducive to debates about the resolution.

Artificial Intelligence Usage Policy

- The use of generative artificial intelligence will be strictly prohibited during the conference.
- All submitted resolutions and speeches will be checked for AI use by chairs and the Secretariat team.
 - All delegates are also discouraged from using AI to generate ideas during debate, as this may undermine the academic quality and integrity of the conference.
 - All position papers submitted beforehand must also be the delegate's original work.
 - AI detection will be used as part of the monitoring process. Delegates who submit resolutions which fall under scrutiny may also be subject to further extensive inquiry by the Oversight Panel; it should be noted that this process will be holistic, as the Secretariat team recognises that AI detectors may often lack reliability.

- Participants found liable for AI usage and misconduct will not be eligible for awards.
